

Shooting Assignment:

Valentine's Day

There are plenty of subjects around to photograph at Valentine's Day ranging from the traditional box of chocolates, roses, candlelit dinners and more. It's a time of colour, emotion and lots of interesting subjects. The keys to great Valentine's Photography are not that different from the normal keys of good composition in photography so as you photograph Valentine's Day this year keep in mind the basics. It's easy to be distracted by the flashy parts of a time like Valentine's but it's often when you step back, take a look around and notice the smaller details that you find the great shots.

Valentine's Day is filled with all kinds of smaller details and photo worthy moments.

The type of images that come to mind when I think of Valentine's Day are pink and red and all things romantic & loving- candles, candies, flowers, stuffed animals, people in love and holding hands.

To really capture the mood of these situations you'll want to be creative and think of the feelings and mood that valentine's day can bring.
